

THE WEEKLY JOURNAL.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1871

A new dwelling house has gone up within a few days on Fourth street.

We understand that Mr. J. Dewitt will soon put up a residence in Holland's addition.

Mr. J. W. Lubbers is putting up a fine balcony on the front porch of his residence.

A. M. Claffin is erecting a large addition to his building. A. M. has a big-sized house already.

Our ingenious friend, C. B. Maedel, proposes to put into his gun shop soon, a lathe with a bed 1124 inches.

Frank Goodnow returned to-day from his Eastern trip rejuvenated, reconverted and delighted.

D. S. Dodds is building a residence for himself in Phillips' addition. He does not propose to pay rent any longer. Sensible.

We are informed by Capt. Terry that the average yield of winter wheat on Gypsum Creek was about thirty-five bushels to the acre.

Major H. B. Murrell ever active, and full of energy, informs us that he is putting up thirty tons of hay a day. That's the way to do it.

A confusion of tongues worse than at Babel may be heard every day at Durham's among the multitudes that are buying his cheap land and city property.

A man by the name of August Schuster shot and killed himself in Ohio township about the 12th of this month. We will give the verdict of the coroner's jury next week.

Messrs. Lotz & Holland are fixing up their new place of business in a tasty style, and propose to keep up with our enterprising business men generally in substantial improvements.

Be taught by the frequent fires throughout the city of the Union that it is best and safest to be insured in reliable companies like those that Durham represents.

Hon. J. M. Ashley is to be appointed Minister to Brazil, while Whitman will stay at home and minister to the palates of our people by dishing out to them his excellent ice-cream.

The amphitheatre at the Fairgrounds will be quite a new thing in this western country. It will seat a large assembly, who can sit with comfort and view the "doings" on the fair grounds.

Our Methodist brethren are winking each other over the noses fearfully. We are sorry they are in such a bad fix with their "corrections," but hope they will soon disentangle the knot that has been tied.

That Joe J. H. Wells for Watermelon favors. He brought us a big "ice cream" one, Tuesday. Also to Jno. W. Boyles, Esq., for several melons—among them a thirty-nine pounder. Also to our friend, Z. Morrow for like favors.

The plan of the front of Geis & Co.'s new bank building has been shown us, which we pronounced at once to be perfect. A handsome front will be found west of Topeka, we believe.

One great advantage derived by our city from the Texas cattle trade, is our success in getting several Texas gentlemen settled among us with considerable capital, which they propose to invest here. We may add many more of them to our population.

Messrs. Henderson & Pontious, Merchants at Lincoln Center, Lincoln county, have closed up their business at that place. We understand that Messrs. Hamlin & Woolley, of this city, are their successors in business at that point, running that store as a branch to their business here.

We sympathize with Mr. Jacob Dewitt and family in the loss, by death, last Tuesday, of their babe, six or eight months of age. Death has twice visited the family inside of a year. In their christian faith they will find relief in the assurance that the little one has gone to join the hosts of angels above.

There is a great cholera in Poland, the Pope has fainting fits and the President is to visit Chicago; but all these facts do not affect the cotton market or prevent Heller at his Salina Clothing Store from selling his fine clothing at wonderful prices, which give intense satisfaction.

The manuscript of the correspondence "from all parts of the world," which appears in this issue of the paper, reminds us of the long drawn petitions in chancery that muddle the heads of attorneys in some parts of the Union. The manuscript "more than covered" all the books and vacant places to be found in our office. But men will write, somehow.

Maj. Probert has purchased a half interest in the building he now occupies with his drug store. He proposes to extend the main room fifteen feet to the rear, and back of this, he will build a warehouse fifty feet long. We are glad to know that he is succeeding so splendidly in his business as to be compelled to enlarge his rooms for his heavy trade. This business house is increasing in popularity every day.

The following note from W. Chamberlin, the assistant postmaster at Rocky Hill, Lincoln county, explains itself. We are glad to make the correction:

Allow me through your columns to correct one statement made in your issue of August 10th, regarding the discontinuation of the Elk-horn Office. Said office has been removed to Rocky Hill, two and a half miles northwest, and not Redrock, six miles southeast.

One of the first objections urged against our section of country a year or so ago was that there was a lamentable lack of stone for building purposes here. Recent discoveries have brought to light immense and inexhaustible quarries of stone in the prominent bluffs hereabout, and the practicability of using the stone in buildings has been proven to be a success, so we judge from the handsome stone structures we observe in the city and country.

We are happy to recommend to our citizens Mr. W. S. Wells, who recently purchased the cigar and tobacco store of Mr. W. C. Schwartzburg. He hails from Ohio, where he has been engaged in his trade for a period of seventeen years. Mr. Wells has been enlarging his store room and making preparations for an extensive patronage, which he will undoubtedly receive.

Another inextinguishable flame that has gone and done it, and it pleases us much to wish him and his, all kinds of good things. He has a heart as big as a fifty-pound melon, and it needed only this one thing—only this to confirm us in the belief that he is possessed of the power to cope fully with this earth's affairs. We will descend a moment from our intoxication—intoxication over the happy episode—and state that the gentleman is Dr. J. W. Crowley, and the lady Miss Tillie Clark, both of our city, and that they were married on Tuesday evening. We tip our hat to the Doc.

J. M. Blodgett, at a recent meeting of the Salina brass band, was re-elected as musical director. Mr. Blodgett arrived in our city some weeks ago, is in charge of the manufacturing department of the Salina Brass Band, and is a clever gentleman. As a singer he and his two daughters are experts and he is also well versed in band music and on the violin. He says he will make the Salina brass band A No. 1, and we believe him.

Messrs. Micks & Scholl, blacksmiths, have dissolved the co-partnership heretofore existing between them. Mr. Micks retiring wholly from the business. Mr. W. B. Scholl will continue on in blacksmithing at the old stand. No words of commendation on our part in favor can add to the popularity and good standing he now enjoys in this community for strict integrity, reliability, and close attention to his business.

A. G. Conice's Livery Stable is being raised several inches. H. C. Stanley superintending the job. The dwelling house adjoining his Stable now occupied by John Foster Esq., is to be moved back on to Seventh Street. Mr. Conice will build in the vacant place a brick business house of two stories, eighty feet deep. He is now filling his Stable with a fine lot of horses and carriages. He also proposes to enlarge his stable in the rear.

We have asked and insisted time out of mind that the city would take steps to cut away the weeds and sun-flowers that flourish so spontaneously "down our way," but it seems to have "got upon its ear" and "will not." It has been said "that nothing is as vain," but we have scratched our heads vigorously by the mid-night oil for a clear idea of what possible use these things can be to the city and why they are considered so beautiful and ornamental. Peoples' tastes differ, sometimes.

The only thing that saved our city, the other evening from a scene of dreadful terror and bloodshed was the indisposition of a drunken fellow to "waltz" as invited by the city Marshal. Oh, ye Caesar, what a stink there would have been had there been a collision! It is a disgrace when an official will step beneath the dignity of his position and offer to fight. But we concluded the Marshal thought to regain some of that fair name he has lost of late. We were there and know whereof we speak.

The county commissioners met at the court house on Monday, continuing their session until the next evening. The chief matter for their consideration was the approval of the additional security recently required by the State of Missouri. The commissioners with the exception of one united in declaring the additional bond a sufficient one and an order was made that the books, key and funds be turned over to the treasurer, which was done. Another order was made that the case now in the Supreme Court against Mr. Amrine be discontinued. Mr. Amrine has been bitterly opposed in his efforts to get up a bond but has succeeded beyond the anticipations of many persons. The commissioners have acted justly and impartially in this matter and the people generally are well satisfied with all the orders they made at their late session.

THE POTTER LETTER.—The attention of our readers is called to an article written by A. S. Potter Esq., County Clerk of Lincoln county, published in THE JOURNAL to-day. In reply to an attack made on him by A. E. Doolittle and others, which was published by us a few weeks since. The article referred to is a sound and well written document, and although somewhat severe on Mr. Doolittle and his party, it is couched in dignified and gentlemanly language. Mr. Potter does not offer mere statements of his own to disprove the charges made by Mr. Doolittle, but letters from prominent gentlemen who have known him for years, and affidavits of respectable persons which would be taken as evidence in any court. We think that so far, in relation to the Potter-Doolittle county seat contest race, Mr. Potter is decidedly ahead.

CORRECTION AGAIN.—Mr. Hamilton in your last has very nearly disclosed the truth. We never denied that Rev. Bartels went to Lincoln county last April, nor that he formed Lincoln county, or employed any one to take charge of it. Neither do we deny that Mr. Medcraft preached there, for he is a man that will not be idle in his "Master's Vineyard," but we deny that he agreed to travel and labor in the Lincoln circuit or that there was any such circuit until Mr. Boynton's visit. Mr. Hamilton throws the blame of the injustice done to all parties on your paper, and consequently upon Mr. Boynton for I suppose it was from him you learned the facts in the case. Now Messrs. Editors, after this you will know better than to publish anything in regard to Methodism around Salina, unless you consult Mr. O. P. Hamilton, as you do not know the true state of the matter.

On several occasions recently Mr. Edwin Taft, a farmer on "E. Creek," four miles north of Brookville, has seen a large and ferocious looking wild cat lurking about his corn field. Keeping a sharp lookout, on the evening of Friday the 11th inst. he contrived to get within range of this unwelcome intruder with a double-barreled shot gun. Discharging one barrel, he merely lamed instead of killing the animal. On pulling the trigger of the second barrel the cap missed fire, and having no other ammunition at hand he instantly removed the useless cap and ran forward to despatch the brute with the butt end of his gun. The wounded and enraged beast with horrible growls turned upon him for a fight. When within ten feet of this assailant the cat exhibiting a formidable array of teeth and frightfully glaring eyes, prepared for a desperate spring upon Mr. Taft, who, anticipating this movement, with the rapidity of lightning dealt him a terrific blow on the head disabling his infuriated enemy, which after a determined resistance accompanied with the most hoarse yells, finally yielded under the repeated blows of Mr. Taft's gunstock. The "game" was carried home in triumph and found to weigh over thirty-five pounds. It was presented by Mr. Taft to a friend of his in Brookville, who expressed his intention to have the skin stuffed, so as to preserve this monster specimen of the feline race.

In Memoriam.—Philip James Addison. Died at the residence of his brother Mr. Wm. C. Addison Salina, Kansas, at 4 o'clock p. m. on Friday June 21 1871, after a violent illness of two days in the 25th year of his age. P. J. Addison A. B. of the class of 70, Monmouth College. The alumni of the College at their late meeting resolved the following:

That there be prepared a fitting tribute of respect for the memory of our Brother who is gone.

"That we extend our tenderest sympathies to sorrowing friends."

"That a copy of our action together with an expression of our regard for the departed be sent to the proper journals for publication and also to mourning friends."

With no feigned sadness we write this epitaph. Our hearts are in the coffin with this one.

While we would pronounce no flattering panegyric yet standing round his grave with sorrowing friends we faint would do his memory justice.

There is a strange fascination about the memory of our brother that makes our hearts cling to him still. Just as in life he possessed a what others which ever drew friends around him in spite of every fault. Out of our constellation has fallen one of the brightest stars. We do no injustice to his peers in the classroom neither will we exalt him as a deity. We say that in native originality he excelled them all.

What others learned by analyzing, scrutinizing or cunning he absorbed by intuition. His character was unique. The distinctions of his genius were peculiarly rare and sparkling. With a soul full of poetry, susceptibility and love he was naturally endowed with gifts suitable for the attainment of the most sublime possibilities.

There was nothing groveling in the creations of his mind.

His idea of life was pure as the snow and high as the stars.

If his life had been sacred and divine help given him then he would have been the noblest and the best. But he who doeth all things well hath called him and we strive to bow in submission.

He has gone to solve the problem of that existence which he once himself so truly said: That it is a mystery and the greatest mystery of all. We give him over to the tender care of a God of love. We fondly hope and not without reason that it is well with him to-day. By the grace of God we trust he is a saint in glory.

Saved—like all of us must be if saved at all—so as by fire.

For on the tomb-stone of every redeemed one must it be written "Not by works of righteousness which we have done but according to His mercy hath He saved us."

Knowing that just before his death he had resolved to devote himself to the work of the christian ministry, we have confidence that to day although he sleeps—yet he sleeps well. Others might have entered on such a work in industry, but his brotherly love it could not be. We would not hide his faults but by hypocrisy or intentional insincerity was not one of them.

Such as he had arose from impulsiveness, susceptibility and an inconsiderate generosity. But he could not engage in any work where he had not centered his affections. Where he loved he lived. We give him over to the tender care of a God of love. We fondly hope and not without reason that it is well with him to-day. By the grace of God we trust he is a saint in glory.

Sometimes before his death he resolved to give his soul to God himself. He had said "I will be a saint in glory."

And remembering the Divine promise "He that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out"—we believe God would have him.

And therefore we joy ever in our sorrow, for we are comforted with the thought that our brother sleeps well in the arms of a loving Savior. The days of his life have gone. They were few but bright.

With a gentle smile comes their knell backward to us over the river.

Slipped from their cables they have glided one by one away from us—sounding faint, sweet incense as they breathe from our longing. We stand on the shore and call for the days that will never come back. We may go to him but he cannot come back to us. So solemn and grave is the thought of the lost. We sweep for the days that are gone. We sigh as we think of happy hours spent with him who is gone—of his eyes that sparkled when touched by thought or kind words and loving smiles. But the hopes he had so fondly cherished for his success in life have all gone out with the evening tide. But we sorrow not in despair for we hope to join him in the day when the redeemed of the Lord shall return with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads and when sorrow and sighing shall flee away. Then we will forget the parting in our sorrow, for the laborers are few—and from every land we may hear the wail "come over and help us," and to all who mourn our Brother's early death to fond brothers, loving sisters and especially to a mother who has lost a darling son we would present the never failing promise "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth—but I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."
